

Applications of Clustering Methods in Text, Speech, and Time Series Analysis

June-Ho Lee¹

¹*Pusan National University*

May 24, 2024

Clustering is a powerful technique to group similar data and provide insight into specific patterns and characteristics. In this presentation, I will introduce various clustering methodologies with a focus on three applications. First, topic modeling of text documents will be discussed. Second, speech diarization for speaker discrimination and recognition. Finally, I will explain time-series clustering that considers time and space in the simulation object model.